ISTA

Office Furniture & Partition

Ista Layout Designers Company (Ista Furniture) started its new activity in the summer of 2011 with a group of experienced and renowned managers in the wood and furniture industry. The gathering of these managers and experienced personnel was able to pave the way for a new way and look in this industry. Ista company is currently operating in Mahdasht Karaj in an area of 20,000 square meters, including 4,000 square meters of sheds and two production lines equipped with modern wood industry machines, in order to produce and serve customers as much as possible. Ista has now introduced its new models to the domestic market and has drawn a generation of attractive, new and functional ideas as a roadmap for the future. We have new words in this old industry, and despite this, a static strategy has been formed with the focus of providing products for different groups of people, with different purchasing power. In this regard, we believe that quality is the main factor of progress and reaching a position worthy of Ista's name and brand. Ista is the leading manufacturer of office furniture and partitions, with Swiss QS certification. The ability and equipment available in the factory has made it possible for Ista company to produce all kinds of models with any degree of difficulty.

CREDENZA

In Italian, credenza means "belief" or "confidence," and confidence is what members of a noble or royal family needed before eating in the Middle Ages and Renaissance. Poisoning by enemies was a constant danger. As a result, it was customary for members of the royal or aristocratic families to ask the servant to taste the food and drink after leaving the kitchen and before serving. Tasting was done in a dining room at a table, and the name of the side table became credenza in Italy.

In fact, this piece of office furniture can be described like this. A long and spacious closet that is placed horizontally on the floor is a table with very short legs and sliding doors. This stylish and versatile piece, which was originally designed for the dining room, can usually be used in any room of the house.

CONFERENCE Desk

Conference tables are one of the most important tables in every office. The most important meetings are held at these tables and important collective decisions are made. Some people think that the conference table is only for meeting rooms and conference rooms, but this is not the case.

In addition to meeting rooms, conference tables are usually found in the executive and vice president rooms of large complexes. In some offices, instead of the conference room, meetings are held in the management room. Office Furniture and Static Partition Company is a designer and manufacturer of conference tables. The superior feature of Ista compared to other similar companies is the presence of different tables. This means that your management desk and conference tables can complement each other. Paying attention to superior quality and design is one of the most important reasons for Ista's effective presence in the office furniture industry.

CLERK Serise

The staff desk is one of the most popular types of office desks. The majority of members of any group are employees, and in other words, employees are the important arm of any organization. Since employees spend most of their time at a desk desk therefore, choosing a table for this group is more important.

The tables of ISTA layout designers have provided maximum use for users with a unique design and use of minimum space. Desks are usually simple desks with one or more drawers. Due to the small space they occupy, these desks are also suitable for those who intend to buy a desk or a simple home desk.

WORKSTATION Desks

Today, modern office design has brought many changes in the work environment. With the of the open-space idea , the traditional design of offices that was common a few years ago is not seen now, and in this way, the sales of group teamwork desks and office partitions have increased.

The meaning of traditional offices is that each employee works separately in a separate room and office desk, away from the rest of the staff. This open space design brings employees together in a common work environment and creates a sense of collaboration and a special and unique culture in companies
